THE SOUTHERN LOYALISTS.

Reception at Utica, N. Y.—Great Rejoicing—Welcoming Address by Hon. Roscoe Conkling—Speech by Gen. W. S. Pope, of Missouri—Speeches on Presidential Usurpation and State of Affairs in Texas.

[Special Despatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

UTICA, N. Y., September 17.

A delegation of Southern Loyalists arrived here at 4 o'clock this afternoon. They were received by the order of ceremonies and by the Local Council of Loyalists. A heavy and disagreeable rain set in about the time of their arrival, and continued through the evening, but this did not deter the people of Utica from crowding out by thousands to welcome the delegation. The City Hall was gaily decorated with flags, many of them bearing the names of Union victories during the late Southern rebellion. That of the Second New York cavalry was torn to tatters in the battles of the Wilderness.

As the carriages entered, with Governor Hamilton at their head, the whole vast audience rose by common impulse, and cheered for several minutes in the most enthusiastic manner.

The procession was accompanied by the organization of fifty veterans of Oneida, and a full display of the City Fire Department, numbering the entire force of the city.

Mayor Hubbell, Chief Magistrate of Oneida County, welcomed the delegation in a few appropriate words. He said that a portion of the delegation were from the State of New York, and that the whole of them were from States which had been overrun by armies of Union traitors. He welcomed them to the hospitalities of Utica, and to the loyalty, not to-day to the frown of treason, of which city Daniel Webster, in the days of '61, said that if the Union was to be saved, Utica must be found in it true to the Union.

Colonel H. S. Fitch, of Missouri, then addressed the audience. He said the people of Missouri had been misrepresented, but the day of misrepresentation was passing away. The people of Missouri were true to the Union. They had fought upon the side of the Union. They had suffered for the Union. They had declared that those who took arms in the rebellion should not be permitted to wield political power. The people of Missouri were grateful to the Union men for having the Constitution in their hands. That Constitution was to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare. Would it promote justice? (Cries of "No," "never.") Would it promote domestic tranquility? (Cries of "No.") Would it promote the general welfare? (Cries of "No.") Would it promote the common defence? (Cries of "No.") Then it would not be the Constitution. Then it would be necessary to go up the ladder of Jacob, and to wrestle with the angel of Heaven, and to say to him, "I will not let you go until you bless me." (Cheers.) He (Colonel Fitch) was in favor of the Constitution as it was, and of the Union as it was. He was followed by Mr. Pomeroy, of Arkansas, and a late lieutenant-governor of Texas, in behalf of the Southern Loyalists.

[Special Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

In spite of the excessive rates for money, which prevail throughout the country, the street and door operations of most of the discount houses have been limited to a very moderate amount of business. There was certainly considerably the largest amount of accommodation that has been given by the banks within a few days, the healthy effect of which will be manifested, no doubt, in a still more free way to this market.

—A suit was brought in the Alameda (Cal.) District Court, on the 10th inst., to test the validity of the charter of the Insurance Company of North Carolina to a resident of that city, who was robbed of $1,000 in coin and watch while drunk and helpless. The Insurance Company demurred to the suit on the ground that there was nothing in the charter to construe a forfeiture that the insured should not enter the military service. On the other hand the representatives of the deceased claim that the charter was forfeited by the insured having been, before the company should pay the sum over, Judge Sawyer has overruled the demurrer, and sustains the company in their construction of the policy. The case will, therefore, go to trial.

Mons Rara, and more soul. Rarely have Dobbins has risen from the dust and brought old Jennie with his watering pot permanently into our midst. If yearly added lustre to the fame of the personal virtues that it could scarcely add more persistently and not for quite so many years. Jennie is the name of which Dobbins has been blessed to construct an art, or at least to this in the Methodist.
